PROBLEMS & NEEDS REPORT
FIRST QUARTER 2007

Report Summary

The following topic is an issue of special concern to the residents of the nine San Francisco Bay Area Counties:

California Primary

Issues related to the upcoming elections. Topics include; the date change of the California primary, the discussion of ballot measures and views from both sides, candidates, polling, debate coverage, immigration and voting machine issues.

California Primary

Air Date	Program	Length
4/27/07	All Newscasts	2:09	Almost all of the Nation's Democratic Presidential candidates are rushing to California tonight. They're heading to San Diego for the Annual State Democratic Convention...which normally attracts only one or two Presidential candidates. So why are so many attending this year? California moved it's normally very late in the game primary way up for the 2008 election, up to early February of next year. That will most likely make California more important to the process than it has been in decades.
4/28/07	All Newscasts	2:03	As you might imagine the war in Iraq is topic "A" for all of the Democratic Presidential candidates this weekend...as most gather in San Diego for the state party's annual convention. The weekend is about convincing delegates and volunteers to pick a candidate to rally around. All seven Democratic Presidential candidates in San Diego this weekend know what the 2,200 delegates want to hear...a loud and clear promise to end the war. There is no voting here this weekend. But what could happen here could go along way toward determining who wins the California primary next February.
4/29/07	All Newscasts	3:00	Democrats have wrapped up their state convention in San Diego. And observers who heard from seven major Presidential candidates say tonight...one seemed to stand out. Up until this weekend, lots of delegates thought they supported Clinton, now many are switching to Edwards. This was hardly a scientific poll. But judging by cheers, and by what people told us, Edwards and then Obama had very strong weekends.
6/26/07	All Newscasts	2:23	Senator Hillary Rodham Clinton continues to lead almost every poll for the Democratic Presidential nomination nationally and here in California. The latest state-wide poll indicates there is one over-riding reason for her substantial lead. She resonates with women.

During the past quarter, KTVU broadcast programming that was responsive to community issues. Due to the extensive amount of such programming, the issues and programs list contains only a portion of the locally produced, issue responsive programming actually broadcast by KTVU.

California State Senators today approved a massive expansion in Indian gaming...the largest since tribes were first allowed to operate casinos. The pact would allow more than 20,000 new slot machines. That's a 50% increase in the number of slots currently operating in California. It must now be approved by the State Assembly. Governor Schwarzenegger's negotiated the deal last year to add $500 million dollars annually to the state's coffers. Some analysts blast the Governor's prediction of increased revenue...calling it unrealistic. Either way...the increase in slot machines is the equivalent of more than ten Las Vegas sized casinos.

A group of Stanford University students and employees marker their eighth day on a hunger strike today. The students are part of the Stanford Labor Action Coalition...that wants the university to pay all workers what they call a "living wage." That's between $11.00 and $13.00 an hour. They say some workers are making as little as $8.50 an hour. University officials are asking the students to break their fast for health reasons and they say they will resume negotiations if the students comply. The students say they are not ready to do that.

The Bay Area has seen a slow down in the real estate market, but not in the home rental market. In fact, experts say, the industry is red hot right now and that's driving prices up. The biggest increase was in Santa Clara County, where average rent prices were up 12.1%, to just over $1,500 a month. Still, for first time renters, these numbers and the costs that drive them, mean they have to pay more to find a place to call their own.

4/20/07 All Newscasts

Bay Area companies are getting some credit tonight for the stock market surge. Among them: Google...which continues to be a business phenomenon. Analysts say the red hot market is a combination of "old" and "new" industries doing well. Analysts credit the "new" Silicon Valley companies for contributing to the boom...calling internet giant "Google" the primary spark. The Mountain View company earned a billion dollars in the first quarter...almost a 70% jump from a year ago. Semiconductor company "Novellus Systems" of San Jose is also a company that is driving the market upwards.

Many women know all too well that they don't get paid as much as men. A new study made public today shows just how large the difference is on average for college graduates. Is discrimination largely to blame? Another interesting finding in the study is that women's scholastic achievement was not reflected in their pay. The study found that women actually have higher grade point averages than men in every major subject including math and science. Professor Myra Strober comment on the studies findings.

One of the Bay Areas most popular parks could soon have one less fire station. There's concern in Marin County tonight where federal park officials are scrambling to reconcile a shrinking budget without reducing services that sometimes save lives. The park service is hoping to save all the firefighters jobs, even if a local fire district such as Southern Marin takes over some of the duties of the Marin Headlands. But, these firefighters say other departments don't have federal fire and medical training. And they're certain any alternative will cost more. Local we spoke with at Ft. Cronkite say they don't want the fire station shut down. The federal panel is scheduled to make its recommendation next month.

Time may be running out for San Jose's oldest and largest flea market...at least at its present location. Last night, the San Jose City Council gave preliminary approval to a plan to turn that location into a residential and commercial transit district. While it's not yet a done deal, the 1,000 vendors who earn their living there say they are worried. The operator of the flea market is looking for a new location. One possible location could be near the fairgrounds. The new development at the market's current site would include a possible future Bart station...if Bart extends its tracks to San Jose.

Some 2,000 vehicles and aircraft will be on display this weekend at the airport in Half Moon Bay....in what's expected to be a major tourist attraction. And that comes as welcome news for businesses struggling to recover from a series of setbacks.

4/30/07 All Newscasts

The legendary prison that became a tourist attraction has been given a new look...that could attract even more tourists. It's a $3.5 million dollar makeover...that officials hope will show visitors what life was really like inside Alcatraz. The living hell that was Alcatraz attracts more than a million visitors a year.

6/18/07 All Newscasts 3:48

Top officials from the NFL are in the Bay Area tonight to review the 49ers plans for a new stadium in Santa Clara. But first, the NFL executives took a look at San Francisco's alternative site ...Hunter's Point. The city has granted the 49ers more than $10 million in rental credits to speed repairs to escalators, elevators and parking lots to keep the team in SF. Tomorrow morning NFL representatives will tour the Santa Clara location with that city's mayor and the 49ers. The site is the parking lot adjacent to Great America, which a spokesperson from the park said would cost the park too many of its 8,100 spaces and will drive customers away.

6/18/07 All Newscasts 2:43

There has been a top-level shake up at one of Silicon Valley's best-known companies. Yahoo's CEO stepped aside today and company co-founder Jerry Yang assumed control. 64 year old Terry Semel has been Yahoo's CEO for six years. And while he kept it afloat during the dot com bust, the stock value of the company has slid some 30% over the last two years.

6/19/07 All Newscasts 2:30

In Silicon Valley, a 40-job layoff may seem paltry. But when job cuts happen at a newspaper, it could affect how thousands view their community and world. There are concerns about the future quality and content of the San Jose newspaper. The executive editor for the Mercury News says declining revenues are the reason for cost cutting.

6/27/07 All Newscasts 2:26

A Bay Area activist group accused an Oakland market today of selling expired, and even moldy food. The market denied the charge...counter-accusing the activists of having an alternative agenda. The owners of Farmer Joe's say the tainted food complaint is just a scare tactic by the Grocery Clerk's Union, which has been trying unsuccessfully to unionize the store.

6/27/07 All Newscasts 2:26

On the streets of South Lake Tahoe, the talk is of concern for neighbors, friends and family members who have lost their homes in the recent Angora Fire. But another concern is also emerging, an economic one, as tourists cancel plans to visit Tahoe, just as the summer season is getting underway. Tourism officials are scrambling to reassure visitors that Tahoe's main attractions are still accessible and open.

6/29/07 All Newscasts 2:31

Many El Cerrito stores already have surveillance cameras, including the kind that turn on when they sense movement. If Police Chief Scott Kirkland gets this ordinance passed the summer, it will require almost all businesses in the city to have surveillance cameras in their shops. Cameras are already in use in other Bay Area cities and thieves have been caught because the cameras have captured their identities. Some business owners are dubious about the idea, citing cost and privacy concerns. El Cerrito is considering ways to help shop owners bear the cost of installing these systems.

6/29/07 All Newscasts :47

The East Bay city of El Cerrito is considering a controversial ordinance to require every business to install surveillance cameras at their own expense. The crime-fighting measure comes up for public debate late this summer. But on the city streets and in the stores, the debate over cost and privacy is already underway.

6/29/07 All Newscasts 2:30

The long wait is over. Six months after Apple's Steve Jobs first teased gadget lovers with details about a new I-Phone, the multi-purpose device is finally being sold. The Apple store in Palo Alto began selling I-Phones at 6pm this evening and the store will stay open until midnight. Earlier, 300 people were waiting and some had camped out overnight.

6/29/07 All Newscasts :46

Silicon Valley is home turf for Apple, but there are many places where a new I-Phone won't work. That's because AT&T is the exclusive carrier and its wireless network is incomplete. As a result, the I-Phone cannot be used in Vermont and Alaska. Coverage is also limited in Wisconsin and the Dakotas. The same is true for overseas. For example, service in Europe and Japan isn't anticipated for months.

The number of homicides in Oakland is down compared to the same time last year. But for many Oakland residents and police officers...the number of killings is still far too high. Tonight they gathered for a community meeting to talk about what can be done to break Oakland's cycle of violence. More than 300 people were on hand for tonight's meeting and they posed questions to police and policymakers. City officials say they are looking at imitating steps taken in the city of Boston, which led to a 60% drop in violent crime in that city.

We're learning more tonight about an elaborate scheme targeting at least two East Bay grocery stores. Investigators say thieves are stealing debit card information and hurting both the stores and their customers. This Albertson's store at Mariner's Square in Alameda is the latest scene of a debit card scam. Authorities say more than 100 customers were affected and authorities are asking them to come forward to help catch the thieves. Albertson's says it has contacted the debit card companies to track down all customer accounts that may have been affected. And Save Mart is replacing all of it's card readers chain-wide.

Berkeley Police are warning merchants and customers to be on the lookout for hundreds of bogus hundred dollar bills. Police say the bills can easily pass as real...because the money actually comes from real currency. The phony $100's are really fives.

6/7/07 All Newscasts 2:00

A string of robberies in an area of Oakland that was once considered generally peaceful...has prompted neighbors to call for extra help. Residents who live in the Grand lake neighborhood have recruited the volunteer safety patrol organization known as the "Guardian Angels" to go to work.

6/7/07 All Newscasts :45

Another anti-crime effort is underway in Oakland tonight...this one targeting an East Oakland neighborhood. City leaders including Mayor Ron Dellums are walking a 10-15 block stretch of International Blvd. They're meeting with residents and merchants for what's being called, "a ground level view of violence and safety issues" along the corridor. City officials say they'll cooperate with the community on meeting its challenges. A meeting is set to follow the walk.

6/14/07 All Newscasts 3:00

San Quentin officials dedicated a new prison emergency room today, one step in a statewide effort to upgrade healthcare facilities for inmates. The upgrades began after a federal judge last year blasted medical care at San Quentin and other prisons across California, and turned over the entire inmate health care system to a federal receiver.

6/19/07 All Newscasts 2:52

Oakland's Chief of Police is making changes that he says will more directly fight crime and violence on the streets. The first change involves reassigning more than a dozen officers who were assigned to patrol Oakland International Airport. The other change is more difficult and is already running into a roadblock from the police officer's union.

6/22/07 All Newscasts 2:50

Outsiders often say the City of Oakland has a crime problem, but sometimes the troublemakers are from out of town. Police know that, so they set up a sting and teamed up with a church group last night to try to put the "fear of God" into people who come to Oakland to buy illegal drugs. Those arrested were taken to a nearby school for processing...and an opportunity to meet with counselors from the Men of Valor Academy. The Oakland faith-based group was on hand to offer prayers...and referral to drug treatment centers.

6/26/06 All Newscasts :47

Later tonight, law enforcement officials on the Peninsula will discuss plans to arm their police officers with taser guns. The weapons are already used on a limited basis in Belmont...but the police department wants to expand their use of the controversial devices.

6/26/07 All Newscasts

Tonight police officials will make a presentation here to the city council announcing their plans to purchase eleven new taser guns. 75% of San Mateo County police departments already use tasers. Police say tasers are a valuable less-than-lethal option. Critics of tasers say the weapons have been known to cause severe injuries and even death. If the city council objects to the purchase, police say they will listen, but is unlikely any objection would change their decision.

The Hayward teachers strike entered it's sixth day today with no end in sight and no talks scheduled. In fact, the only communications between the two sides was a letter from the district to the teacher's union...saying the district plans to go to court to force the teachers back to school. Neither side has budged. The district is offering a seven percent pay raise...the teachers want sixteen percent over two years. Tomorrow, another large teacher's rally is planned. The district hopes to get a "back to work" order by next week.
4/20/07	All Newscasts
The Hayward School District went to court today to try to force striking teachers back into the classroom. The district filed for an injunction this afternoon. The Public Employment Relations Board now has one day to make a recommendation on the injunction to the courts. The teachers say they want negotiations to resume. Almost 1,000 people supporting the teachers marched to the school superintendent's office today...while striking teachers cheered them on. The superintendent met with parents and students...and he said he had no choice but to file the injunction.

At the same time as the Hayward teacher's strike, Alameda County Education officials held a job fair in Hayward today for people who want to teach. This is an annual event unrelated to the current strike. Aspiring teachers learned where they can earn credentials in various subjects, as well as special education. Officials estimate that California will need an extra 100,000 teachers in the next few years. Representatives from at least ten colleges were part of the fair, including Cal State East Bay, USF and Mills College.

San Francisco's plan to make Saturdays off limits for cars on JFK Drive in Golden Gate Park is getting mixed reaction from city residents. Mayor Newsome yesterday announced a five-year plan to close the popular thoroughfare to vehicles on Saturdays as well as Sunday from April to September during the daytime. It's part of a strategy to make the park more accessible to walkers, bikers and skaters. But the Sunday closures have also led to traffic tie-ups for people trying to drive around the area. City attorneys still need to draft a plan before it takes affect.

On the heels of Earth Day, global warming will be the talk at the State Capitol tomorrow. Last year, Governor Schwarzenegger signed into law the Global Warming Solutions Act that mandates dramatic cuts in greenhouse emissions by 2020. Tomorrow, air quality officials will outline how California can reach that goal. A few people that we spoke with tonight here at Berkeley's Biofuel Oasis all hope that other states and countries will follow in California's footsteps. Industry officials have said many of these recommendations could prove costly to California's economy.

Crowds of bicyclists took to the streets of San Francisco tonight for what's known as Critical Mass. Extra police patrols were brought in to monitor the situation after last month's ride turned violent. Officers told KTVU that there were a handful of incidents tonight, in which cyclists and drivers got into verbal arguments. But police were on hand to diffuse those situations. Critical Mass started 15 years ago as a way to promote alternative transportation to vehicles. But critics say it has become a lawless gathering of cyclists who run red lights, taunt drivers and wreak havoc on traffic.

Oakland police arrested 20 people today before dawn, but didn't put them behind bars immediately. Instead, they were taken to headquarters to meet with counselors. They talked about job skills and drug and alcohol rehabilitation. Most of the arrests were drug gun and drug charges, as well as parole violations. Oakland police call this new campaign, "Operation Sunrise," to try to keep people from returning to a life of crime. They say recidivism is a big problem in Oakland.

Dozens of people marched in an East Bay community to halt a recent wave of violence. Marchers in Antioch headed down Lone Tree Way to Deer Valley Plaza. The area is a popular hangout for teens. But the neighborhood has seen a rash of violent incidents involving teens, including a homicide. Organizers are calling for parents to do more. Antioch recently imposed an emergency curfew for teens to get them off the streets by 11pm at night.
